We have with us in this community many valued citizens whose home towns are in other parts of the country.

Circumstances that are our good fortune as much as theirs, have made it to their interest to settle here. They have established homes and built for themselves many warm friendships.

But the "old home," the home of childhood, is somewhere else. Of must come to them fond recollections that go back to the home of their girlhood and their boyhood days; back to the people there whom they knew and loved; back to the scenes that were so familiar and will always remain intimate until the last call arrives to still another home.

It is no reflection on a man or a woman that his or her heart retains a place for the old home town and that he sometimes dreams of it. Sentimental? Certainly, but such a sentiment is good and wholesome and is a mark of human heart that can be trusted—and loved.

To these of our fellow citizens we address this suggestion: That they take advantage of the idea behind the coming "Subscribe to the Home Paper" week, in order that, during the coming year, they shall receive regularly each week their old home town newspaper and see the names and hear of the people they used to know in the happy old days when they lived in the good old home.

You know the paper's name, fellow citizen! Send in your subscription.

BLOOD WILL TELL IN AMERICA!
Fifty six years ago at Appomattox two great bodies of men, one clad in blue and the other in tattered gray, decided to stop fighting and live together in peace thereafter.

Few, alas, of those men are left. The other day the "boys" of the Grand Army held their annual reunion at Indianapolis. Shortly, the surviving fighters of the Confederate army will meet at Chattanooga.

But it will not be long before these handful of glorious blues, and superb grays will be compelled by circumstances to discontinue their national gatherings.

Well, they all belonged, those boys, to a wonderful age in our history. They made merica. For one thing, their deeds of steadfastness and valor in battle gave notice to the whole world that this nation, united, could not be trifled with. And the moment it was learned that their grandsons were to join in the world war, intelligent men everywhere—even in Germany—knew that conflict was all but over, over there.

The heroic blood of the men of 1861-65 courses through the veins of millions of 20th Century Americans. In the last analysis, both the blue and the gray fought for democracy, and they who fear that the descendants of such men will permit autocracy of any breed—whether ancient Hohenzollernism or mongrel Lenin-Trotskyism—to raise its head in this land, are faint hearted Americans indeed.

The Kennett, Hayti and Caruthersville Highway, completed this summer, is proving its worth and convenience these days by the number of automobiles passing from Dunklin county to Caruthersville, where the people of that county are flocking by the hundreds to attend the Pemiscot County Fair which is in progress this week. All this travel used to go to the railroads, to which the loss is considerable in the way of passenger fare. When the full system of good roads have been completed, as will be in a short time, it would appear there will be but little use for the railroads except to haul heavy freight, and much of this is even now being transported by truck. Considerable freight, vegetables and the like, have already come over from Kennett in this way. It seems that most everything is getting "kinder" turned around, and new ways are superseding the old. Why, even the people dress differently, particularly the fair and tender half of our race. But the drift has gotten so great there is no use to try to stop it. Best to drive in.

There has been more building of ments in Hayti this year than any town of its size, perhaps, within a radius of 100 miles. Several new residences of the better grade are now in the course of construction and others are getting ready to build. Streets are being hardsurfaced, and the work of putting down a complete system of water mains is being rushed to completion. Besides this, there has been the construction of the public highways which has furnished labor to a large number of men. With this, and considering the good prices paid for farm products, particularly cotton, we have not been struck by the hard times we have heard so much of in the papers. In fact, we have considerably more to be thankful for than we have to kick about.
